V. Reasoned statement under Article 35(2) with regard to novelty, inventive step or industrial applicability; citations and explanations supporting such statement

1. Statement

Novelty (N)	Claims	1 - 12	YES
	Claims		NO
Inventive step (IS)	Claims	1 - 12	YES
	Claims		NO
Industrial applicability (IA)	Claims	1 - 12	YES
	Claims		NO

2. Citations and explanations

1) Novelty

The subject matter of Claim 1 differs from the closest prior art disclosed in EP-A-0 726 637 (D1) (cf. the relevant passages of that document indicated in the search report) by its characterizing features. It is therefore considered to be novel.

2) Inventive step

The problem to be solved by the characterizing features of Claim 1 is understood to be to prevent heat transfer from the rotor to the bearing. In electrical machines according to the remaining documents of the available prior art, a broadening of the cross-section of the web segments is even provided in the region of the junction of the web segments with the rotor core assembly.

Consequently, an approximately linear contact surface between the web segments and the rotor core assembly (or intermediate shaft) according to Claim 1 is not suggested by the available prior art.

(Continuation of V.2)

Dependent Claims 2 - 12.

The subjects of Claims 2 - 12 likewise involve an inventive step, because these claims are dependent on Claim 1.

- 3) No objections are raised concerning the industrial applicability of the claimed invention.

VII. Certain defects in the international application

The following defects in the form or contents of the international application have been noted:

- 4) Contrary to PCT Rule 5.1(a)(ii), the description does not cite document D1 or briefly outline the relevant prior art contained therein.

VIII. Certain observations on the international application

The following observations on the clarity of the claims, description, and drawings or on the question whether the claims are fully supported by the description, are made:

- 5) The description has not been brought into line with the amended claims. This represents an inconsistency between the claims and the description and gives rise to uncertainty concerning the scope of protection afforded by the claims, which therefore lack the clarity required in PCT Article 6.
